

Jin: Hi, Jessica. How are you?

Jessica: So far so good. What about you?

Jin: I am alright. So, how was your weekend?

Jessica: I was busy and it was tiring.

Jin: Why?

Jessica: I was busy doing some chores like washing dishes, vacuuming, doing laundry.
I also babysat my friends' children yesterday.

Jin: You must be tired. How often do you babysit the children?

Jessica: Sometimes. Not often. My friends could not find the sitter.
So, I babysat for them.
How about you? Did you have a good weekend?

Jin: Yes, I had a great weekend.

Jessica: What did you do?

Jin: I had dinner with my friends on Saturday and we played a board game together.

Jessica: That sounds fun! How was the food?

Jin: It was good. We had some pasta, chicken, and steamed vegetables.

Jessica: That sounds delicious!

Jin: Yeah, it was. I didn't know that my friend was such a good cook.

Jessica: How about you? Are you a good cook?

Jin: I don't know. But I try to cook for my family sometimes.

Jessica: I like cooking too. But I don't like to go grocery shopping.

Jin: Oh, I see.

Jessica: Well, I got to go now. But it was nice talking to you.

Jin: Yes, me too. I will see you tomorrow.

Jessica: Yeah, see you soon.

Jin: Bye!

Jessica: Bye!